To whom it may concern,

Reference: Felix Chiu

This is to advise that Felix was a student on the MA Communication Design: Graphic Design 18/19 course in Kingston School of Art, Kingston University, from the period September 2018 – September 2019. As the Course Leader at that time and Felix's personal tutor, I found Felix to be extremely hard working, committed to his studies and a supportive member of his peer group.

Academically Felix demonstrated a willingness to improve and to achieve the aims of each module through unstinting focus and determination to build upon knowledge gained through sessions and through guided independent study. He has very strong attention to detail, displaying a keen interest in typography and book design and making. His process evidences a willingness to test and try new materials and his output, in terms of his approach to prototyping and making, was prolific. Felix also possesses a strong sense of aesthetic and a natural understanding of how to create visually compelling work. This is evident in his image making and layout.

I believe that Felix will be an asset to any creative team and I recommend him for his enthusiasm, dedication and strong work ethic. I wish Felix every future success.

Kind regards,
